

February 2007

Happy Valentine's Day to each of you! May you find God & His love to be better than anything else in life!

The next couple days are quite busy, and there will be no update next week since we will be gone. Hopefully, by the end of the month we can report about Paula's trip to Florida, and John's class at Baptist Bible Seminary in Clarks Summit, PA.

This is how our week went:

Thursday was a Pastor's Forum here in town. John enjoys these meetings with other men in ministry and is enriched by their wisdom. Friday morning we were scheduled for blood work and X-rays at the hospital. This medical profile is a government requirement for people like us who apply to become "landed immigrants" (permission to live and work here without being citizens). Three hours later we were finally able to have brunch at a Tim Hortons.

Friday we also made some changes to our travel plans. Paula was planning to ride with John to Manchester, NH, and fly to Florida for a week. Then we found out about a flight that goes directly to Florida from Moncton, so... after several phone conversations, we changed her ticket. Now she leaves the 15th and will be in FL two whole weeks to help out. That evening we enjoyed a special fun night with the EBBI students. (pizza, ping pong, ball hockey, table games, etc)

Saturday John worked on his reading assignments while Paula prepared for her Sunday School class, and in the evening we went to hear an acapella group in concert. It was good to get away together and the quartet was excellent. Sunday School went well. John has also joined the evening orchestra with his guitar.

Now we are busy getting another publicity mailing ready by Wednesday night. Thursday, Paula flies to FL, then Friday, John teaches his History of Israel class, packs to leave on Saturday, and attends the church Valentine banquet that evening.

Continue praying:

1. for Paula as she leaves Thursday to fly to Florida for 2 weeks, planning to help John's parents in particular.
2. for John as he leaves Saturday to drive to PA, with meetings to represent EBBI along the way. Pray that the course will go well, and that the Lord will provide for related financial needs too.
3. that EBBI will have a good reputation as people learn about us, and that the Lord will help us achieve the goal of developing well-equipped and passionate Christian servants.
4. for Jim Storey who is teaching here in Moncton, and for his wife Becky who is in NC with her dying mother. Pray that God would take her mother Home soon.
5. for Evelyn, who has offered to stay at our house while we are gone.
